

DEMOCRATS GROPE FOR A CANDIDATE

Executive Committee Will Report on Canvass at Utica Next Tuesday.

MAYOR WALKER GAINING

Alfred E. Smith Also Develops Strength Among Up-State Leaders.

The executive committee of the Committee of Forty-two, which has been canvassing sentiment among the up-State Democrats as to their choice of a candidate for Governor, will meet Tuesday at the Fort Schuyler Club in Utica. At that time there will be a general discussion of the situation and a call will be issued for the full committee to formulate its report. The latter meeting probably will be held in Albany week after next.

One question the executive committee will endeavor to settle is whether the large committee shall select one man and stand on that choice as the decision of the up-State Democrats or whether a number of men shall be selected, any one of whom would be acceptable to the up-State.

Joseph J. Murphy of Troy and William H. Manning of Saratoga are of the opinion that they should pick one man and make a fight for him in the unofficial convention, which will be called some time in July. John Fitzgibbon, Mayor of Oswego, is inclined to side with Mr. Murphy and Mr. Manning.

The other members of the committee are William H. Kelly of Syracuse, T. Harvey Ferris of Utica, Charles E. Norris of Waterson and David P. Lee of Chenango county.

In addition to a candidate for Governor the Committee of Forty-two probably will discuss and may suggest on behalf of the up-State Democrats men for other places on the ticket. Of all the men who have been mentioned publicly for Governor Harry C. Walker of Binghamton seems to have the most friends. If the man who is being kept under cover by the leaders, who have been closely in touch with the Washington Administration, consents to run, Mayor Walker is likely to have another place on the ticket.

Charles F. Murphy is still keeping his own counsel. If he should express a wish that Alfred E. Smith, President of the Board of Aldermen, be named, some of the up-State men would be only too glad to do their utmost to swing the election of the committee.

Two to him, in spite of the fact that they started out with the declaration that it must be an up-State man. But the Tammany chieftain repeats his word that he does not want to have anything to do with the selection of the candidate and is willing to let them go ahead and find the right man.

HOTEL MEN WARM UP TO SPEAKER SWEET

Backing for Governorship Indicated at Up-State Confab.

Special Dispatch to The Sun.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 12.—Thaddeus C. Sweet, Speaker of the Assembly, will have the backing of the up-State hotel men should decide to enter the race for Governor against Gov. Whitman. This was indicated when he held a secret meeting with between fifty and a hundred hotel proprietors from all over the State, except New York city, at the Onondaga Hotel.

Neither the Speaker nor any of the hotel men would discuss what went on. R. G. Summers of Buffalo, secretary of the conference, issued a formal statement that the matters discussed pertained to prospects of the increased railroad fare cutting down the number of travelers and methods of curtailing in hotel management as a war economy measure.

Politics, however, stuck out all over the delegates. Speaker Sweet was the center of a busy group in the lobby before the meeting and attended the conference in the afternoon.

"There is no discussing the fact that this meeting is called to consider means whereby the hotel business can be protected," said G. J. Benson of Albany. "We're here on serious business." He refused to discuss what plans the hotel men had for opposing Mr. Whitman because of his stand on the prohibition question, but admitted that he and his friends had no candidate. "I cannot discuss the Whitman affair," he replied to a question as to whether the hotel men would name a candidate of their own or back one of the men now in the field.

A pledge of secrecy was taken by the conferees.

TRAVIS REPLIES TO LEWIS.

Does Not Control Votes of Subordinates, He Declares.

Special Dispatch to The Sun.

ALBANY, June 12.—In response to the demand of Attorney-General Lewis that the subordinates of State Comptroller Travis be released to support any Republican primary that he prefer, Mr. Travis has advised the Attorney-General that he did not and does not wish to control the vote of any man in his department.

The Comptroller calls attention to the law which makes punishable by imprisonment or fine the act of a public officer in trying to influence the vote of an employee, adding: "I do not intend to violate the penal law."

SHIPYARD SERVICE FLAGS DENOUNCED

Rep. McArthur Says They're for Fighters Only.

Special Dispatch to The Sun.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Following the action of the United States Shipping Board in furnishing service flags to shipyard workers as "reprehensible," Representative McArthur (Rep.) today delivered a speech to-day demanding legislation to prohibit the continuation of this practice. Mr. McArthur said: "The United States Shipping Board has seen fit to supply its shipyard employees with service flags modeled exactly after the regular service flag, but also bearing the inscription 'U. S. Shipping Board.' These flags are being furnished free of cost to Government shipyard workers, who are displaying them in their windows, indicating that a member or members of the family are serving the Government."

"There can be no objection to shipyard workers having a patriotic badge of some character, but I submit that they are not entitled to wear a badge which in any way resembles or can possibly be mistaken for the service flag or flag which represents Uncle Sam's fighting men."

"It is an insult to our brave soldiers and sailors and our gallant marines for the United States Shipping Board to prostitute the service flag of our fighting men, and I here and now call upon the proper officials of the Shipping Board to rescind their action and call in their flags."

CLERK ACCUSED IN RUSSIAN GEM PLOT

Evans, Ex-Member of Copenhagen Embassy Staff, Brought Back a Box.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Investigation of the suspected plot to smuggle the so-called Russian crown jewels into this country has led to the detention in Dallas, Tex., of William Evans, formerly a clerk of the American Legation at Copenhagen, pending an inquiry into what disposition he made of a box bearing a legation seal which he brought back to this country a few weeks ago.

Evans returned from Copenhagen on the ship which is supposed to have carried a quantity of the jewels, some of which have been recovered in New York. The box was packed without examination. Subsequently he failed to deliver this box to the State Department.

Customs officers still are working on a number of ramifications of the suspected plot and inquiries may be directed to the State Department to ascertain the connections of an attack of the American Legation at Stockholm. His wife in this country is said to have received jewels. Two pearl necklaces supposed to have been started on their way to this country are missing.

Two men have been indicted in New York in connection with the case. At the State Department it was said the first information the Department had that Evans had severed his connection with the legation was when he arrived in this country. The Department denied knowledge of any plot involving an attack at Stockholm.

OFFICIALS OPEN BOX.

Evans' Lawyer Says He Acted for Attache.

DALLAS, Tex., June 12.—The box bearing the legation seal for which Federal authorities have been seeking in connection with the suspected jewel plot has been taken from William Evans, a Dallas newspaper man and formerly a clerk in the legation at Copenhagen. Federal officials would not say what the box contained. Evans is in jail.

The box was found Wednesday in Evans' room. The seal had not been broken. Harry Miller, Evans' counsel, said an attache in the office at Copenhagen asked Evans to bring the box to the United States with him, the box to be left in Washington.

Miller said Evans on his arrival in New York unwittingly checked the box with his other baggage for Texas.

PLOT EXPOSED HERE.

Officials Said to Know Where Gems Are Hidden.

The alleged smuggling of Russian crown jewels was disclosed on June 4 with the arraignment in Hoboken of Vladimir Jorgensen and Montefiore G. Kahn on the charge of failing to declare the value of jewels in their possession when they arrived here May 26.

It was said at the time that they were accompanied by a man connected with the legation at Copenhagen, who, in a United States Army uniform, had hurriedly left the ship on the plea that he was on an urgent mission to Washington.

The hiding place of at least $150,000 worth of the jewels is understood to have been discovered by the Federal authorities. The total value of the gems alleged to have been smuggled was reported to be $2,000,000. A woman is said to be involved in the plot, as well as an American official in Russia.

Jorgensen and Kahn were held in $10,000 bail each, which they subsequently furnished.

DEMOCRATS NAME FORD FOR SENATOR
Michigan Conference Takes Unprecedented Action.

LANSING, Mich., June 12.—Henry Ford, who has been mentioned as a Republican candidate for United States Senator to succeed William Alden Smith, whose term expires next year, was endorsed by Michigan Democrats in conference here to-day and slated "to become our party candidate, although he is not within our fold."

The endorsement of a Republican by a Democratic political party is unprecedented in Michigan political history.

The resolution said the action was taken "following the illustrious precedent of our commander in chief, Woodrow Wilson, in endorsing for reelection John F. Kennedy, because of his loyalty and support of the nation's war policy."

What effect the Democrats' action will have upon the Senatorial race was not apparent here to-day, as already former Governors Fred M. Warner and Charles E. S. Osborn have announced their candidacy for the Republican nomination, while Truman H. Newberry, who was a member of Roosevelt's cabinet, has been persistently mentioned for the office.

The primaries will be held in August.

'CARRY ON' TO AID RETURNED HEROES

Magazine of That Name Makes Bow—Aims to Reach Employers.

RED CROSS ENTERPRISE

Designed to Help Wounded Soldiers Reestablish Themselves After War.

The first number of a new magazine called "Carry On" is "out to-day." If the simple announcement means so little to any one that he is tempted to say lightly, "Well, what of it?" he should curb the temptation until he has glanced through the pages of "Carry On," Volume 1, No. 1.

Thereafter the light spoken folk will ever hold their peace, for "Carry On" is the official publication of a band of soldier and civilian war workers whose sole task it is to handle intelligently a problem which within a very short time will be—in fact, already has begun to be—of extraordinary importance in the lives of our soldiers and sailors, and therefore, through them, of prime importance in the lives of thousands upon thousands of parents, wives, brothers, sisters, children and other relatives and friends of the khaki or blue clad boys in city homes or farm houses in every State, county and township from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

The sub-title on the artistic cover of "Carry On" gives the reader immediately an idea of the object to which the text and illustrations of the new magazine are wholly devoted: "A magazine on the reconstruction of disabled soldiers and sailors. Edited by the office of the Surgeon-General, U. S. Army. Published for the Surgeon-General by the American Red Cross."

Will Aid Business Men.

The editors and noted writers who brought out the interesting initial number of the new monthly magazine might truthfully have added to their sub-title a line to the effect that it is also a magazine devoted to mental reconstruction of business men, particularly employers of trained workers, without the cooperation of whom the Government's whole mighty task of reconstructing the returning wounded will be nil.

It is the belief of many of those directing the work of the physical, mental and economic rehabilitation of our returning wounded that it will be a simpler task to make valuable trained workers out of the armless, legless or blinded soldiers and sailors than it will be to hammer successfully into the hard business heads of American employers that the last thing to offer a "reconstructed" hero is charity, and that the first thing to offer him is a job.

In one of the articles in "Carry On" called "Reconstructing the Public," by Capt. Arthur H. Samuels, B. C. N., the writer, who is assistant editor of the magazine, takes up in a concrete way this mistaken attitude of the public toward the maimed or blinded soldier, and makes a distinction between whom the Government will remake into useful workers again. Capt. Samuels writes in part:

"After the war, if a cripple stops me on the street and asks for help," said a philanthropic business man in New York recently, "how can I tell whether he is a real veteran or just an impostor? Will they wear a button to show that they've been soldiers?"

Beggars Are Beggars.

"And the answer was this: 'Any man who stops you and asks for alms is a beggar whether he was in the war or not. No buttons or insignia will be necessary.' . . . The public does not yet realize the distinction between the cripple who can make good if he wants to and the beggar who could make good but doesn't want to. The gap is wide and one of the most difficult and vital tasks confronting the Government and the other forces involved in the problem is to reconstruct the public attitude, to destroy utterly the worn out notion about the cripple and to teach the new."

Capt. Samuels pictures a soldier, "who has lost both arms, walking—he will walk—into the president's office" at an industrial plant and receiving not a job (which, thanks to the training received in Governmental and Red Cross reconstruction hospitals and schools, he could handle well), but a check for $50 and a flow of sympathetic words from the postmaster.

The soldier in question took the check, which caused Capt. Samuels, who has been working for months on reconstruction work under alleged to have been smuggled was reported to be $2,000,000. A woman is said to be involved in the plot, as well as an American official in Russia.

"Now the ex-soldier was human and he accepted the money. He shouldn't have done so. But he is not the only one to be blamed. The president unwittingly did a vicious thing by offering to him, and every man of woman who gives alms but not opportunity to the disabled man—soldier, sailor or civilian—is an enemy of reconstruction. One gift of money that is not actually earned may utterly stifle the ambition of a handicapped man."

"Business men must be told this again and again. The American public must know that their Government has provided a fair compensation and insurance for the wounded, which, with vocational training, provides our returned soldiers and sailors with adequate means to re-enter civil life. There is a general appreciation of the fact that our men will not be turned loose and allowed to drift as after former wars, but it is natural that a subject so new and complicated has got to be explained, iterated and reiterated."

"Carry On" is wholly an army publication, a product altogether of the office of Surgeon-General Gorman, the cost of publication each month being paid out of a sum set aside by the American Red Cross for the purpose.

MOTOR ADVERTISING EDITED BY EMERSON

Future Tense Is Ordered Changed to Present.

Advertisements with which the Emerson Motors Company accelerated its big stock selling campaign in the summer and autumn of 1916 were read to the jury at the trial of the company and other defendants yesterday before Judge Martin T. Manton in the Federal District Court. The advertisements were prepared by the H. B. Humphrey Company of Boston, one of the four corporations charged with being a party to a conspiracy to use the mails to defraud.

The advertisements were read by James W. Osborne 26, Assistant United States Attorney.

Evidence drawn from the records of the Humphrey advertising company served to illustrate the service of Col. W. G. Emerson to the Emerson Company as an editor of its advertising. Col. Emerson is one of the four defendants now on trial. He is in Chicago.

A proof sheet of an advertisement prepared by the Humphrey company and edited by Col. Emerson was submitted in evidence. As originally prepared the advertisement contained the caption, "A People's Car to Be Made by a People's Company." The words "to be" were stricken out on receipt of the following telegram, dated October 6, 1916, from Col. Emerson, who was in this city:

"Your copy of advertisement received. Cut out the words 'to be' in first line top. Last Sunday's advertising dial failed so far as results concerned. Too late to change your new copy, but am afraid it will not sell."

It is the contention of the Government that at the time the success of the Emerson Motors Company was being advertised in the present tense only a few cars had been built and these were being used as exhibits in the stock selling campaign.

Lafayette Kits Now $2.50.

At a meeting held by the executive committee at the Vanderbilt Hotel it was decided that owing to the advance in prices on all the articles included in the Lafayette kits it would be necessary to increase the price of each kit from $2 to $2.50. The Red Cross transports the Lafayette kits free of charge. More than 150,000 kits have been sent to the men in the trenches and more than $270,000 has been collected.

Women to Register Germans.

Acting Chief Inspector John O'Brien of the Police Department sent yesterday to the commanding officers of all precincts an order stating that representatives of the Americanization committee of the New York State Woman's Suffrage party, 105 Fifth avenue, would report at all station houses in the city to assist in the registration of German alien females.
